

Andrew Dey, Barclays Bank plc

Head of Operations, Legal & Compliance

Andrew Dey is Head of Operations within Legal & Compliance at Barclays Bank PLC, headquartered in Canary Wharf, London. He is responsible for many of the Legal and Compliance management and support activities, especially in relation to information systems.

Over the past few years Andrew has been responsible for implementing an in-house case management system, document management systems, knowledge management systems and a many other technologies. A number of these projects have resulted in industry awards.

He is a founding member of both the Legal IT Innovators Group (“LITIG”) set up for as a forum for Law Firm IT Directors and Knowledge Managers to share information and ideas with in-house legal departments, and the “KMIT” in-house legal group. Along with other Banks he is also a member of the BLT (Banking Legal Technology) Group. He continues to be at the forefront of creating standards between law firms and their clients to allow them to share and transfer data, particularly in the areas of billing, taxonomies and legal training information, and is often called upon to offer advice to in-house legal teams.

Prior to joining Barclays Legal, Andrew worked for the Company Secretary’s office following a career working in share registration handling company flotations, and playing a key part in the development of the CREST settlement system for corporate actions.
