Stephen M. Seliskar

Stephen Seliskar is the Leader of Ernst & Young's Americas Dispute Services practice and is responsible for the quality and risk management of this practice. Stephen has more than 30 years' experience in forensic accounting, including fraud investigations and financial damage analysis. He also has provided a broad range of auditing and advisory services and is responsible for quality and client service within Ernst & Young's Fraud Investigation & Dispute Services practice.

Stephen has provided expert testimony in numerous matters, including prominent cases involving corporate veil, automotive, contract matters, intellectual property claims and franchise disputes. He has led engagements including merger and acquisition due diligence and alternative dispute resolution as arbiter.

Stephen has also led investigations of financial statement misrepresentations, corruption and embezzlement. These investigations have included dialogue with regulators and authorities. Stephen routinely teaches and lectures on a wide range of forensic accounting aspects.

Stephen is a certified public accountant, a past member of the American Arbitration Association and a life member of the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners. He earned his bachelor's degree in accounting at Case Western Reserve University.
