April 21, 2021 – Day 1

Session I – 9:30am to 10:30am

Navigating ESG Compliance and Ethics Landmines - In-house counsel are increasingly concerned with navigating the legal risks and ethical minefields that come along with implementing Environmental, Social, and Corporate Governance (ESG) programs across their organizations. In-house counsel play a crucial role in not only the success of corporate responsibility and ESG programs, but also in addressing the evolving legal and ethical concerns that come along with them. What is the in-house counsel's responsibility? What legal and ethical concerns do in-house attorneys need to think about when considering ESG frameworks, standards, and disclosures? What best practices help ensure successful implementation? Join this session featuring two in-house attorneys in the role of environmental counsel and compliance director as they address these questions and discuss ethics, compliance, and ESG.

Speakers: Jillian Kirn, (Shareholder, Environmental Practice group, Greenberg Traurig, LLP), Lori Sanders (Chief Environmental Counsel, DuPont); Angela Curry (Compliance Director, Bentley Systems); Nikki Adame-Winningham (Corporate Counsel, Pfizer, Inc.)

Risky Business: Commercial Indemnification Provisions - Indemnification provisions are important vehicles for identifying and allocating risks in M&A, joint venture or other commercial contexts. False Claims Act Enforcement: Trends in 2020, Predictions for 2021, and Compliance Advice - The number of new qui tam and DOJ-initiated False Claims Act (FCA) lawsuits rose in 2020, and we expect 2021 to be an exciting year for FCA litigation in healthcare. The Government continues to focus on kickback theories of liability, from traditional claims involving the provision of entertainment and meals to physicians to newer theories that nonprofit organizations funnel kickbacks from pharmaceutical companies to Medicare patients and providers. This presentation will discuss trends in Government enforcement and regulatory guidance regarding kickbacks, significant cases, and predictions for enforcement priorities in 2021.

KEYNOTE LUNCH – 12:00pm to 1:30pm

Think Again: The Power of Knowing What You Don't Know - The past year has led us to rethink fundamental assumptions—where to work, how to manage remote culture and collaboration, whether to reimagine our strategy and our products or services. Yet too many leaders and employees are reacting to events instead of proactively looking for opportunities to think again. Organizational psychologist Adam Grant has spent the past decade studying this problem at organizations ranging from the NBA to Pixar to NASA, and he finds that the very skills that make us good at thinking and learning can make us worse at rethinking and unlearning. Building on his new book, Think Again—which has been called “a must-read” by Bill and Melinda Gates and “brilliant” by Nobel Prize winner Daniel Kahneman—Adam examines how we can update our own views, open other people’s minds, and build learning cultures in which people are eager to improve on the status quo. His goal: to make sure you never again say “that’s the way we’ve always done it.”

President Trump's Judicial Appointees Impact on Class Action Law - In his single term, former President Trump appointed more than 225 new federal judges. That figure is well below the totals of recent two-term presidents, including Presidents Obama, George W. Bush, and Bill Clinton (each over 300). But, notably, Trump appointed 54 federal appellate judges in four years, just one fewer than President Obama appointed in twice as much time. In the process, the makeup of several appeals courts has flipped from a majority of Democratic appointees to a majority of Republican appointees. A fair amount has been written about the demographics of the Trump appointees, as well as the records and judicial philosophies of the new Supreme Court justices and how they may affect various contentious issues. In this panel, we will explore the impact thus far and potential influence of these multiple judicial appointees on class action issues. Our focus will include changes at the influential 7th Circuit, the relatively pro-class action 9th Circuit, and our own 3d Circuit. The panel will assess issues such as ascertainability, manageability, and jurisdiction. Over the past decade, the plaintiffs class action bar has been both innovative and activist in trying to find its way around legal precedents such as the class action standards clarified by the U.S. Supreme Court in Wal-Mart Stores Inc. v. Dukes. The panel will also discuss whether companies may expect to see the plaintiffs' class action bar opting, where possible, for a state forum or tailoring their complaints to avoid jurisdictional thresholds for removal of state court class actions to federal court.
