How long have you been a member of the ACC of Wisconsin?

Ten years

Why did you join the ACC-WI? Mike Mulcahy, one of the original board members, encouraged me to get involved in the late 90's when Risk Retention relocated from Chicago to WI. Sometime around 2008 I joined the Board. Being a member of the ACC-WI (f/k/a WISACCA) afforded me the opportunity to work with some great people and broaden my legal and personal perspective while contributing to the efforts of the local chapter.

Do you participate in any pro bono service or volunteering?

Not at the present time.

What do you love most about the legal profession?

I love to solve problems, large and small. In today's complex and litigious society there are innumerable opportunities to address problems involving a wide variety of legal and business issues.

How do you define success?

Since I live in the world of litigation, success is winning: motions, trials, etc.

Who inspires you?

People who exhibit integrity and courage especially when confronting adversity, famous or otherwise. Winston Churchill's ability to inspire the people of Great Britain in WW II always fascinated me.

What's one thing - industry-related or not - you learned in the last month?

Be careful who you trust. Details are better left for another time.

What's the last book you read? Hamilton by Ron Chernow.

Any favorite Podcasts or series you can recommend? I'm not a podcast guy. I tend to listen more to talk radio.
