

As Lockheed Martin Space Operations general counsel, Shawn Cheadle serves launch operations, supply chain, production, quality, facilities, security, Mission Success, ESH, Communications, and special initiatives, and he serves as vice president, secretary and director on the Board for Lockheed Martin's wholly-owned subsidiary, Astrotech Space Operations. During COVID-19, while "living at work" from home, he served on five COVID task forces and received Lockheed Martin's highest employee honor, the NOVA Award. Previously, he served various LOBs with government and international contracts negotiations, drafting and dispute resolution, and was integral in the award of major satellite programs for the US Air Force, including supporting a $7.2B award of the GPS III F program.