This month's resources collectively highlight shifting trends in U.S. financial regulation and oversight—from a period of reduced enforcement activity, to policy directives aimed at expanding consumer access to financial services, to recent adjustments in how regulators supervise emerging banking activities. Together, they illustrate how federal priorities and enforcement approaches continue to evolve, shaping the balance between regulatory oversight, industry innovation, and consumer protection.

MEET THE LEADERS!

ERIC STEIN
RESOURCES CHAIR

1

What do you do?

I am the Chief Governance and Securities Counsel and Assistant Corporate Secretary for a publicly traded specialty chemical company. I lead the Office of the Corporate Secretary and handle securities law matters, advising senior leadership and the Board on governance, filings, and disclosures. I also support the finance organization and partner with IT leadership on cybersecurity-related legal matters.

2

FUN FACT!

I ONCE LEFT A SENIOR LEGAL ROLE AT A PUBLIC COMPANY TO JOIN A STARTUP ACROSS THE COUNTRY PREPARING FOR AN IPO. IT PUSHED ME OUT OF MY COMFORT ZONE, GAVE ME THE CHANCE TO BUILD A LEGAL AND GOVERNANCE FUNCTION FROM SCRATCH, AND BROADENED MY PROFESSIONAL PERSPECTIVE. ALTHOUGH THE IPO DIDN'T HAPPEN, IT WAS A VALUABLE, CAREER-DEFINING EXPERIENCE THAT I WOULDN'T TRADE.
